The Premises:

Her own house in residential street in Whetstone. Area is very safe, easy to park. House a bit run down. Inside it was very untidy, faint smell of dog.

The Lady:

Short, overweight, over sixty, dressed in lingerie which she didn't take off (probably just as well). "Hotlips" Tara advertises in an adult services website. She describes herself as mature 50 (lie), ITEC qualified, offers great massage but no sex, but specialises in oral (covered) and prides herself in giving the best blow-job and tea-bagging around.

The Story:

I do like a good massage with a happy ending, which is what attracted me to the advert. Well, Tara should be sued under the Trade Descriptions Act. She is way past her advertised age of "50". She prides on her boobs, being her best assets and then refuses to release them fully. If she is ITEC, she must have qualified a long time ago. The massage was a half hour very light rub down. The worst thing is that she did not stop talking the whole time. She just kept jumping from one subject to the next. Reminded me of Ronnie Corbet who would start on a three-minute joke, and finish talking about half an hour later. Only Tara is not funny.

Eventually, I managed to get a word in edgeways and we moved on to the sexual side of things. She produced a vibrator and brought herself to an orgasm (while still talking), with a little help from me. Then she started on the oral with the tea-bagging session. I admit she was quite good at this, but this went on for at least twenty five minutes. On the plus side, she could not talk with my balls in her mouth. In the end I got so bored I couldn't wait for the covered oral, made myself come, made my excuses and left.

By the way, Tara is no clock-watcher, but in her case this is not a good thing. It's a shame, because she seems a nice person, but not for this job.
