The Premises:

The neighbourhood is OK, not the best, but not threatening either. The entrance is on a main road, in a row of shops, so quite public. It seems the outer door is usually open, so you can slip in without attracting too much attention. The entrance and stairs are frankly scruffy, but once inside, the flat is clean and cosy (yes, that does mean fairly small!) - but the room is fine. The shower works, but is a bit temperamental in the hot-and-cold department - beware.

The Lady:

Erica is very attractive - a pretty face, a gorgeous figure - neither under- nor overweight. She's all woman, and all of it in the right places - and her skin feels lovely to touch.

She is friendly and welcoming, and has a disarming way of getting straight to the point which at first makes you think that she is cold and businesslike - but once you talk to her, you realise that she is charming - and solicitous to a fault.

The Story:

I booked for a 90 minute massage with HR (nothing else is on offer), and she was careful to ask if I had any questions about the session, or any special requests. I decided on this occasion just to go with the flow, and let her show me how good she is - and believe me, she is good.

The "straight" part of the massage was as good as I've had anywhere, and the more erotic part was excellent - she knows exactly how to bring you gently to the boiling point and hold you there, and senses when the moment is right to go all the way.

She asked me more than once if I would like to come twice - the first time I said no, but after she had brought me to a rousing climax, she asked me again if I would like to go for round 2. At this point, I had to admit that there was very little chance of success, and was quite happy for her to massage me for a little while longer.

I left relaxed, stimulated, and very pleased to have met a lady who seems to enjoy, and take pride in, her work, and seems genuinely concerned to make sure you leave completely satisfied.
