The Story:

We should, according to the philosophers, aspire to "mens sana in corpore sano": a sound mind in a sound body. But having met Poppy, I would like to argue in favour of an alternative: "luteo mentis in lubricaque corpus" a dirty mind in a dirty body (excuse the cod latin). For that is what Poppy uniquely exemplifies: a remarkably dirty mind in an unbelievably dirty body. She also swears more loudly the more she is stimulated, and more logarithmically than linearly. Not for the faint hearted. But then again, dear reader, would we be such fans of Maxes if we were ourselves faint of heart?
