The Story:

This was a let down of epic proportions bordering on the bizarre and a warning to those of you that might be considering visiting her.

I have looked forward to visiting this lady for some time and a business trip to Stoke gave me an opportunity. She seems well reviewed on the site but I notice she has decided to hide her feedback recently.

Anyway I called and she seemed very friendly on the phone and we discussed my requirements in detail, right down to dress etc. My business trip was cancelled and Stoke over 90 mins away but what the hell I thought, I was looking forward to meeting her.

Imagine my disappointment at the other end when she was unobtainable and I had to return home! I did call her half way home and she was very apologetic saying she had been called away. Strangely without either of her phones.

Anyway she texted me twice later to further apologise, tell me she would never let me down again and to offer make it up to me in more ways than one, including a reduction on my next visit.

Well my brain was still in my pants and she seemed like a genuinely caring person-absolutely mortified by letting me down. So what the hell.. I agreed to come back the next day as I had little else on.

So I made the long trip to Stoke again...and guess what? Exactly the same thing happened-unbelievable!

Just a text saying she was unavailable on the day would have made all the difference. So why with two phones at her disposal was she incapable of sending one, on either day?

There has been a deafening silence her end since. Lucinda are you there? Please explain this one.

Sorry Lucinda how could I ever recommend you?
