The Premises:

A basement flat near Anerley Station. Front entrance is a little exposed, but there is a rear entrance also. When I arrived the receptionist was quick to apologise for the 'mess' in the reception, as the place was undergoing a redecoration. The bedroom was clean and tidy.

There was a bit of a mix up on the appointment time (my fault no doubt), which meant that I turned up 20 minutes early, but the receptionist (Pat) was so friendly & chatty I felt at ease pretty quickly.

The Lady:

Pretty much as per the photo's on the website (although the face is clearer in real life !) Lovely eyes.

The Story:

I went for a 'fantasy' scenario with Debbie; she was to interview me for a job with her company, and I had to prove that I was prepared to 'give my all' to get the job. Debbie came in wearing a secretary's outfit and proceeded to interview me. She was so good, and played the part so well that I started to get a little nervous, and worry that I wouldn't get the (fictional) job!

I'll gloss over the details; suffice to say that the whole experience was absolutely fantastic, definitely the best role playing session I've ever had, Debbie kept up the role playing right to the end, and will surely be able to take up acting as a career when she hangs up her suspenders (which will be a sad day for the rest of us).

Afterwards we went out into the main reception area, where I was offered a drink (lager), and chatted to Debbie & Pat for a while.

Debbie is a real star, she really knows what she's doing, and I'll definitely be back.
