The Story:

I don't think any words could do justice to describe the time I spent with Riyana, however if I had to choose then 'unbelievable' would come to mind. It was a Saturday and I drove up to Leicester early to get in a relaxed mood for the evening ahead. After some thought I had decided to have an extended evening with Riyana, I only wish I could have been with her all night but that was my fault. She arrived five minutes before the agreed time and straight away made me feel very relaxed. The first thing that struck me about her was her amazing figure, most beautiful eyes and heart melting smile. She wore a tight black dress, which complimented her figure in the best possible way, this lady knows how to dress.

I had already ordered a bottle of wine prior to her arrival and we had a drink in the room. We then went downstairs to the hotel bar for further drinks before heading to the restaurant for dinner. The conversation flowed with such ease that it felt like I had known her for years. When we walked into the restaurant it was funny to see the heads turn to look at her. I'm sure some guys must have felt a growing pain in their trousers LOL. I can only imagine what silent abuse they must be giving me for being with such a beautiful women. I often lose confidence when I'm with women, which leads to me giving the silent treatment as I go into my shell. On this occasion however I was amazed at the fact that I had felt so laid back and responsive. I was made to feel special which is a feeling I haven't had for a very long time. Once we had finished dinner and had one final drink we decided to retire back to the room.

I will not go into too much detail as to what happened after that but I can say this that it was something I shall not forget until the day I die. She never seemed to lose energy, which was a good thing however it did eventually come to end after I could not carry on any longer. We drank some more wine and cuddled up together for the last few minutes of our time together.

The clock struck 2am and that time had come when I had to say goodbye to this amazing women. We exchanged one final kiss as she opened the door. She started to walk away but still had time to look back and smile before the door shut. I was left with the memories of a great night and a great women, but also of sadness that it had come to end. I would love to spend another night with her but at the same time am very reluctant because I know that I would fall in love with her LOL typical guy eh.

If any of you guys are ever in Leicester then you should seriously consider spending some time with her, you will not be disappointed. I believe she does travel a little but you should see her web site for further details of how far she goes to. I have one final request, enjoy what she has to offer but do be gentle with her please.
