The Story:

Didn't click at all with Rachel. Place was very busy for a Monday morning and there was a choice of only 2 girls available. Trisha, as usual was busy with a punter, Laura was also busy. This left three girls Carrie, Rachel and Shannon. I have been with Shannon before and she is OK but can be moody, Rachel didn't really float my boat so I asked Carrie if she would accompany me. 'Sorry I have a booking'. That ugly am I? To be fair, the guy had only just booked her and I have had good reports about her.

So I was left with a choice of one and there were two other guys waiting with another just coming through the door. If I waited until Trisha came free it could be another half hour, so I went for Rachel.

In the room she was OK but quiet - nothing to make the heart race. She placed a condom on me for oral, which is her choice but not usual for this place. Says it's because she is English, so remember that next time you make your choice...

Oral was OK and I unloaded early and would have gone on for a repeat but she made me feel so uncomfortable that I couldn't wait to get out - can't really explain why, just no rapport at all.

Met a guy in the changing room after and asked how his punt was - he chose Laura and was happy - 'she keeps you interested, heh, heh..' He had been with Rachel and Shannon before and concurred with my view. He said that sometimes after a bad punt you leave feeling deflated and this was how I felt. We agreed that Trisha and Shirley are by far the best girls in this place and after a session with them you leave on a high.

This is not the first time here that I have had next to no choice and the owner always says that there are more girls 'on the way here'. Well I'm sitting here in a robe wanting to choose one now, so what friggin good is that to me?
