The Story:

Have been working in london for six months on secondment for my company. Was a little stressed at work, decided to visit South London.

Have been passed on web site by colleague at work. Got a good service, my one regret was that i was a bit too stressed to enjoy it properly, well worth the money, my only criticism is that it is too far away, (I came by train from London bridge).

One or two minor points, i came from work, wearing a suit, and i felt that I stood out in Anerley. Secondly, I used the back door, which I found by accident, would have been nice to have been given the option. However, as i said, well worth the money, relaxed, no clock watching, Nina was really chatty, good experience.
