The Premises:

Another one of those pop up massage places which will, no doubt, get shut down in a few weeks in east london. these guys used to be on another road and seems that they have now shifted to this new address, which is more close to the station. when you come out of east ham station head left and left again onto burges road. about a ten minute walk from the station. not a main road but still very busy. just before going in saw a young indian chap leaving out of the door.

The Lady:

phoned and was told two ladys were working, from singapore and korea. the one i went for was about early 30. was very hairy down there. could hardly speak english. lets just say both ladies i would not look at when walking down the street, but since i was horny i thought might aswell... my mistake, again. one looked as if she was on drugs, the other was just abit more up for it, went for her.

The Story:

the maid is a chinese guy who opened the door. no cum on boobs, no cum on face, no cum in mouth, no swallow, no extras of any kind. a tug job which literally made me hurt afterwards, told her to easy down. having said that she was nice and polite but the service is awful in every way. there are many many more east london massage places to choose from where much, much sexier girls are happy to take cum on their body and tons of other extra services. normally, i would expect oriental massage places to provide many extra services- i mean that is why i go to oriental places, not necessarily for the girls but for the unique services. bad thing is, when i phoned was told all these extra services are available for ?10 more. complete lies. avoid unless you are in the area and want a tug job. o and yes, got the knock at the door at about 14 minutes or so, typical.
