The Premises:

Bit of a dump, but a step above absolutely desperate. Location isn't that bad...short walk from the train station, but the flat is a pig-sty within. Whatever the maid does doesn't include any of the responsibilities of the traditional maid -- like cleaning and tidying. Also very cramped...no hallway so if more than one punter around, discretion requires being bundled into the bog or kitchen. No real waiting room, either. Parking is limited too. Honestly...not so bad that you wouldn't punt there but not very nice.

The Lady:

This is the only reason I'm writing the report; Angelika is a genuine goth/punk, and as there is a market for this look and few girls who offer it, it is worth highlighting her availability. She is not tall, but tall-ish (maybe 5'6"), has long (lower back length) jet black hair (probably dyed), a very, very fair complexion, B-cup boobs (not big, but a nice size), lots of tatoos (not my thing, but not offensive), is slim, and is fully shaved. Most of all, she is pretty. She has a lovely face. Around 21. Trust me, if the Goth thing is what you're after, I don't think you'll be unhappy with Angelika.

The Story:

TBH this was a punt that didn't really click but that was my issue, not hers for the most part. I was short on time and, with other punters banging on the door every 5 minutes and being told to walk around the block plus various other mental distractions upsetting my rhythm, my mind was elsewhere (resulting in my heart not really being in the punt either) so the result really wasn't very satisfying. If I had a genuine niggle, it's that she doesn't kiss (properly) and when that becomes apparent -- yes, I know I should ask up front -- I often rapidly lose interest anyway but this was a punt for all the reasons above that just never really caught light. Pity.

Were Angelika anything other than so specialised in her look, I'd have simply not bothered with this review and waited until I'd either seen her again on a better day to review her, or just let the meeting drift into the mists of time. But I think she's worth highlighting because she does offer something that will appeal to a certain group of punters: her look. She does do what it says on the tin and her service -- in spite of my own issues -- was fine, by the way.

My only other comment is that I do like the Goth look and I thought she was very attractive. Most likely, I will go back, put a bit more into it, and get a better result. Once again, for those after a Goth...go for it. A safe recommendation on that score.
