The Premises:

Well-known walk-up, which has provided me with plenty of nice experiences in the past. This one is near the Charring-Cross road junction. Spacious and clean, but far, far too hot inside the room, with it being a warm day outside too.

The Lady:

Andra claimed to be Italian, which is highly doubtful due to the accent. Research on here shows that she's also claimed to be Belgian before too. Slim lady with a small, nice, bust, although all was covered (she refused to disrobe throughout the whole encounter) and proved to be a monosyllabic responder.

The Story:

A very poor punt. My tolerance levels tend to be high when considering the likes of the Soho establishments. Nevertheless, there is a fundamental foundation for a service and I have experienced many a good punt in the area and at this venue. Andra proved to be extremely contra to this and I was so put-out by the poor experience, that I had to wander my way down into Green's Court to see an old favourite, Jessica, who successfully restored my faith in the delights of the female race with her superb OWO skills.

I should have been put on my guard when I attempted to give Andra a welcoming hug, only for her to put her hands on my chest and hold me off in a very non-intimate way. I shrugged this off as a potentially nervous gesture and negotiated the finances to surmount my apprehension. Once undressed and laid on bed, the condom was put on even before any attempt to make me hard. So bemused I was that I thought I would allow the proceedings to continue to see how it would all pan out. Oral commenced and lasted approximately 60 seconds, if that and by this time, I was semi-aroused.

She then pulled off and asked if I was ready, which, clearly I wasn't.

I considered briefly what other exciting times I had had in that room, on that bed, which brought me quickly to readiness.

Sex thereafter was perfunctory, due to my lacklustre interest in this girl and her apathetic posture. Far too much lubrication was used to make anything sensual.

The most strange thing then happened, which has never occurred in my whole history of punting. At the very instant when I indicated that I was reaching my orgasm, she began to wriggle and pull away and was clearly reluctant to permit me to complete inside her. This was very bizarre as she pulled away when I hadn't even completed. Every single girl I have been with has always allowed me to finish before withdrawing. A perplexing conclusion to a very dissatisfactory punt.
