The Premises:

It has been a while since I visited Pampers and it has obviously been refurbished in the intervening period. I entered round the back of the building as it is less obvious and was shown straight into a new (to me) massage room which was much bigger than the old ones, still with massage table but this was much larger and more solid than I remembered. Nice use of mirrors means it is easy to see what is going on from all angles.

The Lady:

Slim without being skinny, mid to late 20's with shortish blonde hair, lovely smile and killer legs.

The Story:

Pampers always has had the problem of being too expensive for the (albeit usually good) service offered due to the "entry fee" paid at the door and for this reason I hadn't visited for several years. However on this occasion I couldn't get in at any of my other local haunts so, having made the decision I was "in need", gave it another go and am very happy I did.

I was shown in to the treatment room and introduced to Amy. No one else was offered so I don't know if there was a choice but she was bubbly and sexy and definitely fit for purpose. I was happy to get undressed as directed and climb upon the table. A shower was offered before and after but declined on this occasion.

Amy started with a gentle massage, dressed in underwear, while chatting to me about my day and saying that it had been a very slow day for her. The massage, which was somewhat less than medicinal, lasted maybe 10 minutes, slowly getting more and more focussed on the "right" areas before the inevitable conversation on extras started. I stretched out the massage a little longer before kneeling up and having Amy start to take me into her mouth.

Amy joined me on the table and it was pretty clear that she was nearly as horny as I was, which resulted in the session getting very steamy, oral both ways, me making her cum twice (no faking), then eventually her finishing me off orally and swallowing the lot. We laughed together afterward how she had needed that as much as me.

Having settled up, I left for the evening with a big smile.

I won't leave Pampers so long next time, although the "entry fee" does still make it more expensive than similar establishments in the area for similar service, but meeting Amy made up for the additional cost this time around.
