The Story:

I hate to write this report, but as there aren't any other reviews, I have to warn of my experience.

All seemed good. Good looking girl, nice location. But she seemed a bit edgy to begin with rather than sweet shyness.

I put this down to nerves in my opinion at first, but it was that she was either drunk or on drugs. I'm no doctor and she may have had a medical condition for all I know, but she was very vacant with eyes rolling and then involuntary body movements. All whilst looking off into space. Breathing deeply and not being able to sit or stand still.

So I got a bit worried and after a back rub that scratched me quite badly in my neck both sides as well as her falling onto me and causing two red grazes on my left arm...I made my excuses and asked to leave.

So after 20mins and 120quid at that establishment I went [elsewhere] knowing that I would be looked after. The maid is a cutie. I was looked after and made to feel better and we chatted about how these things are more common than you realise.

Public announcement over. Sorry Samantha.
