The Premises:

A flat in one of the elegant old buildings near the centre of town. Plenty of parking nearby. The interior of the flat was about average. I looked in vain for the 'new room', and was not offered any 'hot or cold drinks' as advertised on the website. An electric heater struggled to keep the room at an acceptable level of comfort.

The Lady:

Although the management claim that all photos on the website are genuine, I get the feeling that some are more genuine than others. Or perhaps they are genuine pictures from long ago? Amber is not unattractive; but she is not the slim, sylph-like creature whose wispy limbs grace some of the photos on the Madison website. Nor is she 28 as stated. Maybe late thirties. She is a well-built, friendly person who tries to please, which suited me fine when I had got over my surprise at how different she was from the photos.

The Story:

The session was satisfactory, a bit like sneaking into bed with the mother-of-three from next door. She likes a good cuddle. The premises are adequate, if a bit chilly for the winter-time. Washing facilities are available, but the bathroom was, as on my previous visit, messy and full of drying sheets and towels. This place needs to be tidied up a bit and prospective visitors need to bear in mind that it may be a case of what you see is what you don't necessarily get.
