The Premises:

This is a new establishment, and rather smart. There is a bar-type reception area, where the ladies wait. A friendly receptionist introduces you. ?20 is paid to the receptionist, the rest in the room. The rooms are smallish (but large enough) cubicles, with black decor and large mirrors on walls and ceiling. I think there are six cubicles, so they are obviously hoping to have more ladies on duty in the future than the two who were there today.

The shower is rather a good one, providing water at just the right temperature (I noticed this especially, having recently visited an establishment where the shower could do nothing between freezing and boiling).

An impressive new establishment. Quite a bit must have been invested in it. I first visited a couple of weeks ago, when I saw a cuddly mixed-race lady called Aara, and had a very pleasant time, which was why I returned today, and met Demi.

The Lady:

Demi is a friendly brunette from Liverpool. The website says late twenties, which seems about right. Her breasts are the nicest I've seen for a while.

The Story:

The massage was gentle and sensuous, and she picked up my hints that I liked to take things slowly, rather than rushing at it. When it was time to turn over, I really appreciated the ceiling mirror. The usual services are on offer, and I'll just say that Demi is skilled at her job, and knows how to send an old bloke like me out into the cold February afternoon with a smile on his face.

I gather that extras are on offer, but did not explore this possibility.
