The Premises:

Spacious studio around the corner from Notting Hill tube station. Clean and smelled fresh. She had some relaxing music playing in the background with birds chirping like they do at an actual massage parlor

The Lady:

She is exactly like in the photo on the site, toney, very trimmed body almost no body fat on her with olive tanned skin and lovely long hair. I did ask her how is she doing to keep in shape and she cheekily said she feels up guys asses all day long.

The Story:

I called her the previous day to book an appointment as I get a lot of pain in my upper back. I explained this to her on the call and she recommended thai massage and asked if I would like a happy ending which was included in the hour. This seemed a fair deal to me considering we were not in Bangkok and I was more interested in the massage than the lady. Anyway I discussed my back problem and she said no problem, come and she will fix it then give me a relaxing happy ending. I would recommend calling ahead to book as she later told me she gets a lot of calls asking to come in 5 minutes or the like and she doesn't trust these callers to be genuine so turns them all down.

I turned up outside her flat 5 minutes late and she didn't mind or complain. I requested a shower before and after so I handed over my cash and got in the shower. She was dressed in a tight top and had those same or similar shorts on as her photos. She was watching me through the glass of her shower and laughing away. I didn't really mind but I was thinking does she realise it's 2 degrees outside and I had to have my winter coat on just to step outside. I mentioned the cold to her and she just nodded yes and pointed to her small heater which I presume was on full blast and keeping the room at a warm temperature.

I got out of the shower and she helped me with a towel to dry off then led me to the bed and asked me to show her the problem area. I promptly did and asked her not to be gentle, I admit I was feeling a bit devious as she was looking very appraising on a cold afternoon. Anyway I kept myself in check and lay down on the bed and let her work. She has only a very slight frame and is incredibly slim but has a lot of strength in her hands. She really went for it on my back and to my surprise provided one of the best massages I have had for a very long time. I relaxed listened to the bird chirping music she had on in the background and let her work. She massaged away for some time then asked if its ok if she cracked me. I wasnt quite sure what she meant but I agreed. She meant to manover my body so it would produce a crack which felt wonderful. My back was feeling much more supple and most of the tension had gone.

She then worked the rest of my back, my leggs and arms. She said if I was better I told her she was wonderful and her fingers were magic. She laughingly said not magic at all but given to her by the buddha. Whichever was true it was working for me.

After a bit more of a massage she asked me to turn over and went on to give a fairly good hand job. She had me coming in about 5 minutes if that which nicely rounded the hour of for me.

I had another shower and she helped me dry of once more. I did find myself wishing I was getting in to bed with her rather than going out in to the cold but such is life.

All in all s wonderful masseuse who speaks very good English and is open to having a few jokes to make you at ease and relaxed but her real skills lie in her wonderful buddha fingers. Thankfully no pains in my back almost a week later.
