The Premises:

This was Day's Inn, on the A14 just north of Cambridge. Usual motel-style place, no problems.

The Lady:

Petite, dark hair, reasonably good-looking face with a fit bod. She's Romanian, spoke reasonable English, not fluent but OK. So far, so good!

The Story:

She took the money and we settled on the bed. On with a condom for some oral - no OWO, although it's offered on her profile. After a while, she asked if I'd like to 'go on top'. I don't get hard enough for sex with a condom these days, so I declined. She didn't seem to want me to touch her much at all in any case. She got some oil and proceeded to toss me off, even though I made it clear I would have preferred a slower pace.

After I'd come, she lost interest in me completely, got up and starting texting on her phones. This was after perhaps 15-20 minutes. I lay there for a while, then got up, washed, dressed and left. No 'Thank you', no 'Goodbye', just a functional opening of the door and I walked away.

Overall, not a good experience! Not very bad - she did try up to a point, after all - but it was obvious she was only interested in taking the money and giving a minimum service with no warmth or real respect for me as a customer.

I've had a couple of good experiences with Romanians but this wasn't one. To be fair, her nationality probably isn't all that significant. I think her attitude was typical of a number of young women - self-centred and lacking in basic courtesy.
