The Story:

These parties are advertised as being predominantly swingers events where they 'allow' a few paying single males to attend. It isn't the case - they are sex parties plain & simple with three working girls and around twelve paying guys at each party. The odd swinging couple may turn up but that is the exception rather than the rule from what I can see. So these are no different in theory to the sex parties run by Pam or Limelight.

I first attended one of their parties at their other venue in Blackheath a couple of months ago. It was 'OK' but nothing special. The venue was a terraced house on a small estate and not particularly discrete. What surprised me was the overall lack of hospitality or organisation. Nowhere to hang clothes, they were just dumped on the floor. No towels, no refreshment offered, no food. Each 'guest' was just given a small bottle of water and then effectively told to get on with it.

I wasn't too impressed but decided to give them a second chance yesterday at their other venue in Victoria. It proved to be not a lot different. I arrived (together with another guest) about ten minutes before the party was due to start (as the organisers request) to be told to come back a bit later as the girls were 'not ready'. Hardly a great start. A bit later we went back and the first thing is you are asked for the money (£70). Once that's out of the way the receptionist simply pointed towards the bedrooms and said the girls are through there. I didn't know her name and she just sat throughout the whole event basically smoking and not interested in engaging with any of the customers. Once again no food or refreshments, not even a bottle of water offered this time.

In terms of the girls, Andrea is nice enough (she had also been at the Blackheath party) and I went with her.

As for the others, well Jessie-Jo seemed more interested in talking than anything else. It's clear that she views herself as some sort of superstar. I know she was some form of 'model' in the past but in my opinion her best days are certainly behind her. As for Rebecca, well OK if you like your girls really large but I don't.

Overall another disappointing party and I bailed out just after the hour was up - I simply didn't want to be there anymore which about says it all.

There are much better value parties than these with nicer girls and much better hospitality. I won't be going back.
