The Premises:

The flat is new and clean, located close to Paddington station. Quality shower and clean towels available so facilities are appropriate.

The Lady:

Photos always flatter to some degree, and although armed with a little boob job, she is attractive and in a good shape.

The Story:

I noticed that she had only very few reviews anywhere, which should have alarmed me already. Rose was not my first choice for the day but as the other picks were not available for the moment, I decided to go for her then.

There was something wrong the moment I walked through the door. She looked grumpy even when I had not said anything so far, but as she had a nice body, I decided to move ahead anyway.

Although confirmed by the agency, she did not do OWO or FK. As a reply and keeping on her bad attitude, she just said that she is not concerned with what agencies say. This should have turned me away already but carelessly I handed over the money nevertheless.

Kissing was as to be expected, kissing lips on the outside and cheek as the girl turned her head away. Obviously boobs were almost not allowed to be touched at all. BJ was what it was as the girl was not too interested in touching the balls at the same time. She had problems with even basic positions in the act and it felt like she just wanted me out of the door as soon as possible. With little interest left the booked hour turned into a boring and expensive half an hour. The rest of the time she liked to complain how she has "problems" with lots of men and having worked in other countries before, she likes to threaten them with authorities and such. So much for a nice pillow talk.

This is the worst experience I've had with any escort so far, and I haven't really had so bad experiences before. I've had great experiences with some of Admiral's girls before so I would not recommend to take this as a statement against them. Just be cautious with this encounter as she seems to be listed in many other agencies too with a similar name.
