The Premises:

Agency provided flat in mansion block. Clean albeit far from glamorous. Tiny bath with tub and shower head. Good neighbourhood about 8 mins from Lancaster Gate tube.

The Lady:

Indian lady, early twenties. Natural tan complexion. Long black hair. Very smiley and friendly. Body firm but not slim. Average breasts, shaved. Pretty eyes. Could do with using body lotion and perfume. See below experience.

Unfortunately, not the same lady as in the pictures. The website features three pics, the one which shows the most detail of her physique is definitely not Samira. The others could be her, but unclear. Disappointing.

The Story:

I booked Samira as Isabel whom I originally chose was on holiday. Agency lady was singing her praises and the pictures looked ok. Also fancied an Indian girl as I had never been with one. As I had tantric massages in the past, I was fairly clear as to what I could expect: Visions of a dimly lit boudoir, filled with the aroma of scented candles, gentle music playing in the background. Unfortunately, on this occasion, the set up was rather more utilitarian. The rendezvous room was dimly lit alright, but way too cold for a massage. There were no candles nor any particular scents wafting about. The stereo remained silent.

I'm not going to go into detail of our encounter other than saying it had a happy ending. However, given the price of £190 I expected far far more. Yes I was allowed to touch. Yes I came. Yes the massage was pleasurable. Yes she thanked ME(huh?)....

However, It wasn't what I had bargained for.

The pictures were fake. She was pretty but not gorgeous. And tantric this wasn't either.

Oh, nearly forgot: the poor girl actually developed body odour from her arm pits as we got a bit sweaty! Instead of roses I got onions!

Really?? you're providing a service which involves nakedness and some physical exertion and you cannot even use perfume or body lotion to make your skin smell nice and soft?? You're in the wrong job, honey.

As we said goodbye I asked if she would have a busy evening: "Hope not!" She goes. 'Nuff said.
