The Premises:

The usual house for Annabella's. About a 25-minutes' walk from the station and located near the shopping centre. Comfortable room. Did have to knock on the front door several times before getting an answer.

The Lady:

Apple is a 28-years-old Singaporean-Filipino lady, slender in build with smooth velvety skin. An attractive girl with lovely long hair, a pair of strong pliant hands. Her English is more than adequate, although the avoidance of colloquialisms is essential.

The Story:

I'm pleased to report that this encounter turned out well, considering my last couple of visits to this establishment has not gone so well. With a name like Apple, the inevitable quips come easily to mind. There's no doubt though that the plucking of this sumptuous fruit only left a rich, delicious flavour. The usual was performed, although OWO was not offered. I wasn't too worried though for licking was encouraged and incurred as an extra.

There were a few noteworthy points to this enjoyable experience. Predominantly was the excellent massage technique. Apple has obviously received some training in this art and having experienced it first-hand within Asia, I'm aware of pretentious attempts to conduct this. Apple did not portray and inability in this regard and delivered a very firm, varied and all encompassing massage. An excellent, first-rate feature.

Impressively too, she offered me the opportunity to go for a second time, which, I do not think I have seen in a 30-minutes appointment. She was willing and at no stage, clock-watched.

I know this is a small point, but I found it endearing. She excused herself to attend to the bathroom whilst I was dressing. She kept the doors open and returned within moments. A neat touch to conclude things. I left, as she was preparing to enter into a two-girl session – an appealing image for my departure.
