The Lady:

Aisha is a beauty, no doubt about that. Only disappointment were her tits, in her pictures these seem bigger and rounder. In reality are small and perky, but some like that better.

The Story:

Firstly I need to give a bit of background. Aisha was my second time with an escort after a failed experience where I couldn't perform, not because of the girl (she was amazing), but because of me. So I needed confirmation. I needed to prove myself.

The experience was awful. There was simply no chemistry whatsoever. Aisha didn't even make an effort to please me: First I was licking her nipples and she immediately says "don't bite" (when I hadn't bitten), then I tell her to touch herself for me and she looked the other way like "whatever", then I ask her if I can lick her pussy, she accepts but you could breathe her uncomfortableness. She comes then on top, I grab her bum to go hard and she says "easy baby", I calmed down but start kissing her skin and she hated it. Then she says, you better cum fast because we don't have much time left; I ask her how long do we have left and she says 10minutes, so I ask her to lie down so I can fuck her watching her and she didn't let me. She even laughed that she didn't understand how I expected to put my dick inside like that (Seriously?).

Of course after that I lost my erection and frankly I didn't care. Wished Aisha a "nice life" and left the place in less than a minute.

I don't know what her problem was. If I'm not good looking or have a small dick and she doesn't want to fuck me not even for money then she should have told me. Otherwise, a bit of effort to please the client doesn't hurt, does it? As with everything in life, I want to pay for a service where the person enjoys providing that service. I don't think that is unreasonable.

However, my compliments to Rosebud London Escorts for the efficient way they deal with clients.
