The Premises:

We met at Charlotte's flat in Bayswater...I walked up from Paddington Station, which takes about 10 minutes and takes you past a few nice cafes and pubs if you have time to kill beforehand. The flat is in a stunning mansion block, (with metered parking nearby if you're driving). There's a discrete lobby, and a lift to the flat which felt welcoming, and cool...having aircon in the boudoir makes a massive difference in London in the summer.

The Lady:

Charlotte is an auburn haired lovely, while Matilda is a blonde with porcelain skin. It's almost easier to say what they're not - not common, not fake, not porn star plastic, not orange...Both easy on the eye, lovely on the ear, gorgeous to the touch, pretty, in a better than the girl-next-door kind of way, curvy english ladies.

The Story:

Charlotte and Matilda were both there already...a smudge of lipstick told me they'd already been getting to know each other a little before I arrived, which broke the ice and was exactly the introduction I'd hoped for. I think "three" is always the perfect number, but it can be awkward or just a little dull if the girls don't get along. But from the way they kissed me and each other, it was clear this was going to be fun and the chemistry between these two ladies was genuine. I got all the attention I wanted from the start...that shared blowjob between two ladies is simply something every man should try at least once in his life. They took turns kissing my me and going down on me and I nearly didn't make it to the second act....but I'm glad I did because the view over a curvy bum to the other girls curvy boobs as they took turns going down on each other while I did my part from behind was simply breathtaking. Literally - and when I needed a breather they played happily together and it was a lovely thing to watch! And by the finish ... simply, my best threesome ever.
