The Story:

Quite rare I visit parlours and after being told that Sandys was exceptionally busy over the phone, I decided on trying somewhere 'off the beaten track' so to speak.

Located Scarletts on my phone and as they didn't have a rota on their website I called and enquired as to who was working and available.

Receptionist told me that Ashleigh was working, brief description which was correct but notable I was told about her great attitude towards her clients etc.

So I took a shot in the dark and went for it on the back of the phone call.

Unfortunately this turned out to be the complete opposite to what I was told.

I found Ashleigh to be completely uninterested in what was happening. Conversation was minimal and after a while I decided to end the encounter as to be honest it was about as inspiring as a cold shower on a cold day.

Won't return because on my way out I was asked if everything was okay? To which I replied that sadly the lady wasn't interested to which I got a shrug of the shoulders and on my way I went feeling peeved at the loss of money and a mind of regrets.

Lesson learned and for the guys that read this, maybe consider other options before venturing here. Wouldn't normally leave 'negative' feedback but as this was so poor I feel it needs venting.
