The Premises:

small hotel in Croydon didn't get inside so cant give anymore information.

The Lady:

From her pictures, physically this girl is the type i go for. You can see that the pictures are obviously airbrushed but i still decided to book her but from the quick glimpse i got of her through the glass entrance door she is a lot bigger than the pictures.

The Story:

I made a booking for early in the afternoon on the phone and she sounded pleasant and friendly, unfortunately i encountered travel problems so wasn't going to make the original time but she was happy enough to see me later. Phoned her when i got to East Croydon station and she texted me the address which i found easily. It was a strange arrangement a sort of small hotel/apartment block. Anyhow i phoned her to tell her i had arrived and she said she would come down and let me in. I stood by the front door which was glass so you can see straight through. I saw her at the door, at first i wasn't sure it was her as she was different to the pictures but it probably was her (as mentioned above the pictures have been photshopped). It was odd as she didn't look at me she was just staring and playing with her phone. I thought she hadn't seen me so i waved and she just turned away and went back into the hotel. I phoned her but no answer so sent her a text asking why she hadn't opened the door and she replied.. "cancel next time". WTF i had travelled all that way to see her she took the booking came to the door and just ignored me. I sent her another text saying i would submit a report advising fellow punters about my experience and she made up some story about a new receptionist/landlord and that she would have to move from this place. This is obviously a pack of lies as she is still operating from this location. Im afraid this is just another Romanian timewaster so if you do decide to see her i hope you have better luck than me but my advice would be to look elsewhere.
