The Premises:

A very small, modern flat close to London Bridge Station and Guys Hospital. The room was small, but comfortable and there was an en-suite shower room. The entrance was via buzzer/intercom and it was very discreet.

The Lady:

A friendly, petite and busty Thai girl. The pictures don't do her justice.

The Story:

The service provided was massage/relief. The massage was performed on a table which was right next to the bed. She asked me to put anti bacteria gel on my hands before the massage. It was a very good massage with oil. It was a mixture of firm and light with plenty of cc swipes and stroking to get you aroused. She had some relaxing music playing on her phone during the massage. The finale was performed on the bed. It was then that I saw her lovely breasts. I thought they were fake at first, but they were natural and a lovely D cup size. She was very gentle with the relief and it wasn't long before I exploded with pleasure.
