The Story:

Overall, not a pleasant experience ! I was in a Hotel within the Leeds area so decided to use one of the local agencies. The booking itself was very straightforward. When Zara arrived I offered her a drink at the bar. Although she accepted I then realised this was a mistake due to the way she was dressed....short black dress, killer heels and bright red lipstick. It was obvious to all at the bar what was going on and I felt very uncomfortable. I thought perhaps that as she knew that I was at a Hotel, she would be a bit more discreet ? On the plus side, she was chatty enough but when we eventually got to my room, her attitude changed. As we had spent a bit more time at the bar than anticipated, she wanted me to finish up asap, to the point where it was affecting my performance. I even offered to finish on her chest to "hurry things up" to which I got a sharp "NO".....WTF ? All in all, not a good experience and certainly one that I will not be repeating. I think that she should stick to her day job !
