The Premises:

Nice apartment close to Earls Court tube station. Outside it looks rough, but inside it's clean and well maintained. She shares the flat with another girl, Meji is her name I believe, and apparently Victoria is upstairs. Ariel's room is cozy, comfortable, a standard size double bedroom. She's given it her own personal touch. Good firm double bed. A tall mirror stands by the bed. Very nice. Easily accessible by public transport. Pretty easy to find. Reasonably safe and discrete.

The Lady:

Ariel is a pretty Thai girl. Probably about 5'1" and dress size 6 to 8. She's enhanced, but pretty well done as these things go. Not quite as toned as I remember her, but certainly nothing to complain about. Lovely tight little pussy. For those wishing to have a chat, her English is poor. Agewise I'd guess she's early to mid 30s, but she could easily pass for mid twenties.

The Story:

First things first: Ariel is NOT independent. She's still working for an agent/manager, just now it's through AW. She also has the same pricing structure as before, where the agent/manager gets their cut, which is why her rates are the same. The agent manages the AW profile, handles the bookings etc. When you text the number on the AW profile, the agent replies, not Ariel.

The problem is that this agent is booking her customers back to back, squeezing in as many punters as humanly possible every day, not even giving her 5 minutes between punts to freshen up. This means she has to cut each punters time short, and even while you're there, everything is too rushed, and it's not possible for her to give her full undivided attention to each punter.

This was a mixed bag. I'd seen her a few times previously, and she was very good each time, so I thought this would be a sure thing. She is a lovely girl, and the first 35 minutes or so were great. The sex was excellent, and she was cute and sweet. She was overdoing the sweetness a little, and also fake moaning, and the old "You very handsome man" routine, which was irritating. She was fun and engaging, but her English is very limited, so any hope of 'click factor' was out of the question. Nevertheless, we had a nice shared shower to begin, then to the bedroom where she was an energetic playmate, giving me her complete attention; great OWO. It all felt a little formulaic however, a slickly performed, professional service. She is an enthusiastic kisser. We had sex in several positions, finishing in doggie. Immensely pleasurable.

But then she said she got a text from the agent telling her she had another booking immediately after me at 7pm. This was when the sex had just finished and I was gasping for breath on the bed. She was about to start the massage. So instead of beginning gently and getting gradually stronger, Ariel went straight from zero to 200. It was the roughest, fastest, most brutal, painful massage I can remember enduring. After about 10 minutes of this, she grabbed the towels and my hand and raced frantically back to the shower. It wasn't actually a shared shower, even though we were both naked in the shower together, as she hurriedly washed herself for the next guy. We then dashed back to the bedroom and as I quickly dressed myself she stood in front of the tall mirror and fixed her hair and make up (no pampering today). She kept glancing at me over her shoulder in the mirror, and saying "I so sorry babe", "Next time babe, I give you more time" "You very handsome man, babe" "I so sorry babe". She was laying the sweetness on with a trowel now. I thought I was keeping a stiff upper lip, but I must have looked crestfallen. Then she took me by the hand and rushed to the door, gave me a quick peck on the cheek, and I was out the door and staggering down the street 5 minutes early.

So, the first 35 minutes were excellent, but the next 20 were a big disappointment, as her attention was fully focused on being ready for the next guy, and not me, who's with her in the room. AND I got chucked out 5 minutes early! This really sucks. When you're forking out £150 for an hour, that's not a good deal. Very poor vfm. I had great sex with a gorgeous girl, but still came away feeling short changed.
