The Premises:

Massage parlour in middle of industrial estate. Clean throughout with showers in rooms.

The Lady:

Good looking girl-next-door with slim, tanned body, dark hair, localish accent and medium sized natural breasts. Description says 32 years old, which looks about right.

The Story:

Bear in mind, this was my first experience of visiting a massage parlour after a long period away from sex, so things are still a bit of blur.

The venue is located within an industrial estate away from houses. You walk across the car park into an entry area and ring a bell to talk to the receptionist. When I called in, in the middle of the afternoon, the receptionist was very friendly and showed me into the waiting room area. I think she could tell that I was nervous as this was my first time visiting this sort of establishment, and she went out of her way to put me at ease and explain how things worked. There were three women working and one of them was already occupied with a customer. The two women in the reception area, both British, one black and one white, were both very pretty and I chose Victoria, a slim, tanned, girl-next-door type in her late 20s/early 30s.

We both proceeded to the room and I was offered a shower if I wanted one. As this was my first time, I declined as I wanted to keep things as simple as possible. She asked what I wanted and I asked for hand relief with her top exposed. This cost 65 pounds for half an hour. I think she could also tell that I was nervous due to inexperience and she was extremely friendly and courteous at all times, which really helped.

After sorting out the money, I got onto the bed in the darkly lit, but clean, room and Victoria removed her top and her bra. She turned out to have lovely, medium sized natural breasts which I complimented her on. I've always had a problem with being very slow, and I apologised for taking so long. I made this worse by having a drink on the way there for Dutch courage, which always numbs me - so lesson learned there. She dismissed my apology and assured me that it was no problem. As this was new to me, I think I was a bit overwhelmed, but everything went as it should thanks to her efforts which included a lot of skin contact and pushing her breasts over my face which I was allowed to kiss.

As I said, this was my first visit to a place like this. Both women that I met (Victoria and the receptionist) were very friendly and helpful. Obviously, they have to treat all customers with courtesy, but Victoria came off as kind and understanding and not at all impatient. Afterwards, I said goodbye and I was shown out of the discrete side entrance.
