The Premises:

Easy to find location in the Bayswater area, but not so easy to access the building. Bit of a complicated system really. Agency was very helpful forwarding messages to Nela etc. and very apologetic, but it was a pain in the ass. Would not be easy if you'd had a couple of beers, or it was very late at night etc. Inside, her apartment was nice and cosy, spacious and well lit.

The Lady:

Nela is a very beautiful young woman, 20 years old, incredibly slim, but not exactly like her pictures on the website. Definitely the same build, tall, but a little hard-faced looking. But that could have been just me. A pretty young woman none the less.

The Story:

I'll go back to the start. The apartment is in a building right next to a bus stop, that is frequently busy during the day, so it's not an ideal location if you're the nervous type when you're waiting for a girl to answer the buzzer. What made this worse was that the entry system was very complicated. It wasn't a case of just pressing the number and then getting buzzed in. I was told from the confirmation text that it was flat , but that wasn't even on the keypad. So I immediately thought I'd come to the wrong place. There was a place across the road with the same numbers, so I went over there to check. Messaged agency and they helped me sort it out. It turns out that Nela wanted me to press a particular button first and search for a particular name and then call. Then once through that door, I had to key in a four digit code sent to me again by the agency. Then and only then could I actually get into the building. Not a good start!

I have to say that the agency were very helpful with all this, and they were incredibly frustrated with Nela too. Apparently this wasn't the first time they had an issue with her about this. I think she really should think of another option.

Nela looked fabulous in a short, tight white dress. Tall, slim and sexy. However, she looked pissed off. When we went to her room she said that I was late and that wasn't good. I replied that I was actually on time and that I'd spent ten minutes trying to get into the building. She didn't seem to mind me giving her back as good as I got and we proceeded. I wasn't bothered about losing ten minutes anyway.

This review isn't going to go the same way as my others because I have good things to say and bad things. Which is why it's somewhat neutral. The downsides were: When I went to kiss her she turned her head away and shook it, murmuring that I couldn't, which was disappointing, considering it was on her profile as a service. The second thing was that OWO was not on the menu either, and that too is on the services list. She told me she had a mouth infection, so I understood to a certain extent, but I think it's only fair to either tell your agency that you're temporarily not offering these services, or don't be available to begin with until you can offer what you say you can. Again, not the agencies fault here, and I really feel for them, because I certainly told them after the booking.

On the plus side, she is incredibly beautiful and genuinely very slim. And the sex is very good too. From behind was the best because she has such a lovely firm ass that just springs back into shape! Her tiny boobs are great too when she was on top. She's nice and tight and feels good. OWO was a bit meh, but that could have been her infection or whatever.

If you want a gorgeous young and slim girl, she's a good choice, but her attitude and the convoluted system of entry is a no from me.
