The Premises:

Top floor of a block of flats near Paddington. Entrance on wide open road - nothing negative about the neighbourhood.

The flat doesn't seem to be occupied as a residence, and has little charm, but its clean and functional. The bathroom is basic but was well disguised by candle light.

The Lady:

Roxy is absolutely lovely. Her photos are definitely her - but perhaps a year or two (only a year or two) old.

The Story:

I have been visiting a number of tantric providers and felt like trying a "soapy massage". Many agencies offer this, but with a supplement of £50 on top of their basic £200 or £250 - which seemed a little pricey. Tantric Pleasure suggested £120 - so I thought I would give it a go. The website is not great. The gallery has just 2 photos of each girl with no personal details and the text is very amateurish, but what is there is very tempting.

Booking by telephone was easy. Nevertheless I was a little nervous bearing in mind the poor website and the complete lack of any reviews of either the agency or any of the girls.

That didn't last long. Roxy was a delight. I handed over the £120 and she very politely explained the (basic) rules. The price did not include intimate touching by me - that would be an extra £40. By then I was in love, and as the basic price was very modest it didn't take long for me to hand over the top up.

Then to the bathroom. Here the website was a little misleading. It suggests that the session starts in the bath but in fact only a shower was provided. And the shower was hand held, having fallen off the wall. But who cares? We had a delightful time with shower gel everywhere.

Having dried off, we moved to the bed for a conventional tantric massage. Less time spent on "proper" muscular massage than normal, and more with the tantric tingling of nails lightly stroking sensitive parts. On turning over, Roxy applied warm oil to those parts and to her own £40 zone. She slid up and down for a while, and then lay down on her side encouraging me to extract full value from the extra payment.

She timed the build up to perfection. After the inevitable we had a cool down chat and then a solo shower.

Roxy is fabulous. If tantric massage is your thing, do not hesitate.
