The Premises:

The tiniest one bedroom bedsit flat I can recall ever visiting. A combined bedroom and kitchen, with a very small combined toilet and shower room. Was clean and functional though.

The Lady:

Ayumi was very petite, with very smooth skin and some tattoos as per her profile. Dressed in nothing but a pair of red high heels and some lipstick. I though she looked attractive, like her photos.

I didn't think she was particularly friendly, and hardly spoke or smiled.

The Story:

Probably the second worst experience I can recall in 15 years. I have used AW before with mixed results, but having looked at Ayumi's profile she had so many great reviews, her pictures looked fab, and she seemed to be just the lady for a good time and lots of services. I texted her to ask specifically if she was doing french kissing at the moment and she replied yes, so I booked, she texted me the address and I was on my way, very excited about the prospect. I was on time and texted her when I arrived at the road on the postcode given (I was only given a postcode and had to work the rest out, luckily I had Google maps on my phone). She then texted me the full address with a different post code. I asked if it was a different post code and she texted back that it was a typo error (no apology). I replied that it would take me 15 minutes to get there, she replied it was a 4 minute walk. And that I should take a black cab. I'm now having doubts. When I arrived (10 minutes later after a quick sprint) she buzzed me up to her flat. She opened the door and I commented on how beautiful she looked and she asked me if I wanted a shower. I made some small talk but got nothing in return, and I wasn't offered anything to drink despite sweating after the run. I had a shower and mouth-washed and when I came out Ayumi started with OWO we moved on from there. But not very far, the french kissing did not happen (she kept turning her head), she looked thoroughly disinterested, did not like me touching her fake boobs and removed the condom to finish me off by hand after less than 30 minutes. I had paid for an hour and the remainder of the time was taken up in a fairly standard and robotic massage. A complete waste of my time and money, and the most annoying thing was the lying and the lack of manners or apology for the mix up of address. I had been played, probably because there is not online booking on AW at the moment so you can't leave a review. There are some lovely honest girls on AW but in my opinion Ayumi is not one of them. My advise would be to steer clear, and if you're looking for a nice Asian girl book through an agency that can give you some feedback.
