The Story:

Evelina was very attractive, and kissed passionately, and was good as well, she seemed very enthusiastic, and up for most things.

Found her very attractive with a good figure. After half an hour, she seemed to lose interest (very suddenly) and suggested I have a shower, basically hinting no more was on offer. I did politely say I would like a second round, at which point she looked disappointed, and just decided to lay there and do nothing, with her legs tightly clinched together. I decided that I would have a shower and leave.

Initially I was overall happy, but after about a week I did start having a few problems, I went to a clinic, and they gave some anti-biotics, they were not sure, at this stage, until further results what it was exactly, but suspected chlamydia. I guess everything should be done protected.
