The Story:

Not good at all, it was her second day(so she says!) at the LR and he is very very inexperienced . I believe she is much more suited to the massage parlour scene.

The point I want to make is to you the management, why are clients not told that ladies are inexperienced and learning the ropes?, why are we charged 100 quid for this inexperience? why are we not asked about our service?.

Perhaps you should have them shadow more experienced ladies until they are ready to go alone or charge less money until they are ready.

Furthermore, Tina was on reception and guess what?, she never even asked how the service was, she was just not interested. When I arrived she was on the phone to her mates and yes when I left she was still on the phone to her mates. You would expect she would like some feedback on new girls, after all this is a customer service environment you work in.

I have been more times than I remember now, and really wish Penny and Victoria would return, the standards are slipping very very quickly.

Are you going to respond to this? I expect not? I imagine you say well what the hell it is just the industry and some other stupid punter will take my slot next time.
