The Premises:

As previously reported - on a main street opposite a car showroom. No-one really taking any notice and door was opened swiftly. As to the car parking situation, I parked in Sainsburys carpark nearby (£1.50 for up to 2 hours) and had the fee reimbursed for spending £10 on groceries. No real drama :-)

The Lady:

Diane is the owner. She is the first to admit that she is no spring chicken, but she definately has all the right parts in the right places!! Opened the door with a low cut white blouse and a push up bra - Mmmmm. There are normally two girls working each day, so "Horses for Courses" - if you dont fancy the more mature lady see who else is there.

The Story:

Choose Diane's as I recalled that on a previous visit (some years ago, I am ashamed to say) it was mentioned that the establishment had a sauna available. I was quoted £65 over the phone and gave them 1hrs notice to warm it up. When I duly arrived, I was shown into a room and changed into a towelling robe. Also given a fluffy towel. Diane also changed into a robe and we went to the sauna. This is where it got really interesting - and not just for the obvious!! Diane is a very funny lady and we chatted and laughed as we sat there. It was like being with a dear friend and joking and laughing about everything and anything. Make no mistake though, Diane is a consummate professional, and whilst making me feel incredibly relaxed also managed to give a great bbbj which nearly had me ending the session all too early. After a cold shower together we returned to the sauna for more of the same, then, when the temprature was rising considerably, we went to the bedroom where Diane finished me off with a great bbbj to completion, swallowing the lot. As others (including Diane) have said, there are probably many more younger dolly birds available. But you just cant buy experience!! Afterwards we sat and chatted about all sorts for ages and when I looked at my watch I had been there over an hour for a half-hour booking (so the term "clock watcher" does NOT apply here).

Thank-you Diane for a great time, both sexually and conversationally.

See you soon.
