The Premises:

Spangles is well established, discreet entrance at the back of a row of shops. Interior has remained largely unchanged, with decent shower facilities and clean towels provided.

The Lady:

Haven't been for a while so thought I'd pop in. Settled for Holly as she was fairly new and certainly looked attractive facially. She's probably around 30, size 10-12 with fantastic breasts that she told me, to my surprise, were enhanced. She has lovely dark brown eyes and great smooth olive skin. A little flabby around the midriff, but some might prefer to call that naturally curvy.

The Story:

Paid for the 45 minute session. Started well enough with pleasant chit chat and a rather average massage. After about 5-10 minutes was asked to turn over and she proceeded to spray me with oil before giving me a hand job. BJ was covered and was brief to say the least, which was disappointing. She then positioned herself on the massage table so I could fuck her with her legs braced against the wall whilst I played with those glorious tits. I would have settled happily in that position until I finished but she seemed intent on hurrying things along and pushed me away, told me to lay back on the massage table, then proceeded to remove the condom and started wanking me off, telling me she wanted me to come like that.

What started as a very average punt quickly turned into a bad one. She was generally disinterested, and was constantly intent on rushing things along. The lack of interaction and stimulation from her was seriously putting me off, especially when she just stood over me watching me wank myself off, all the while saying that my 45 minutes was almost up (I knew very well that I had only been there for 20 minutes at this stage!).

I don't like writing negative reports, as I've had so many good experiences at this place. But it does take the piss somewhat when you pay for a service that is just simply sub-standard. Holly embodies the worst traits of this game - mechanical, disinterested and worst of all, she was a clock watcher (and it appears quite happy to con punters of the time they paid for).

If this had been my first time at Spangles, it would have definitely been my last. But because of the calibre of other ladies there, I am inclined (though rather loathe), to give it the benefit of the doubt and put it down to a bad egg in a basket of generally good ones. The reputation of these establishments very much depends on the service provided by the ladies on its books, and I'm afraid to say that based on my experiences with Holly, Spangles has gone down somewhat in my estimation. I will have to think twice next time, if there is to be a next time. The credit crunch affects all of us, and in these lean times, it irks me to think that I have wasted my time and my hard earned wages on mediocrity.
