The Premises:

Short walking distance from Crossharbour DLR Station

Was "talked in" on mobile through the rear entrance of the building through the underground car park (could be dodgy at night) and up one floor into the apartment. At this point the lady said you will see my friend just before entering the apartment which set my alarm bells ringing . The hallway was in darkness and I could just make out a female form in the gloom before being ushered into a dark bedroom (why do they do this as it is so off putting)

The Lady:

The Japanese lady was not the lady in the photographs, and I said I came to see Sesa, and was told that was just a name. As suspected it was a bait and switch job, and although the lady was quite large for a Japanese and not the usual petite size, I thought that "in for a penny in for a pound" and decided to go ahead with it

The Story:

It was not the best punt in the world, and I suspected that my disappointment affected my performance as I was expecting to be with a petite oriental girl and not a size 12/14 one

I also felt uncomfortable in the bedroom, as I could hear mens voices in the background - maybe her minders

I certainly will not be returning
